"The "Where I Live" Art Contest highlights the critical link between safe, suitable housing and educational success, and does so in a way that invites elementary students to creatively express their own experiences, ideas and perspectives. I applaud each and every talented participant who devoted time and energy to this year's contest, and I congratulate each of the award winners on a job well done. I also commend the dedicated teachers and faculty within Clark County School District for their daily efforts in support of education in Nevada, as well as the team at the Nevada Housing Division for working tirelessly to raise awareness about housing issues in our state. As we continue to work together, we can ensure that our children are provided every opportunity to succeed, and that begins with providing them a place that they can call "home."

Kathleen Sandoval

"A home is not only a place where you live, it's where you feel safe and can be who you are."
