

NOTICE TO BUYERS

Your home purchase is being financed with a mortgage made available with the assistance of the Nevada Housing Division. This mortgage is made at an interest rate below what is usually being charged. Because of this, your mortgage provides that you cannot sell your home to a person ineligible for assistance from the Housing Division, unless you pay your loan in full. If you sell your home to a party ineligible for the Housing Division's assistance, the Housing Division may demand immediate full repayment of the loan. This could result in foreclosure of your mortgage and repossession of the property. In addition, if you rent the property or committed fraud or intentionally misrepresented yourself when you applied for the loan, the lender may foreclose your mortgage and repossess the property. If the lender takes your home through a foreclosure of the mortgage because of these reasons, HUD, VA or the Private Mortgage Insurer will not be able to help you.

If the money received from the foreclosure sale is not enough to pay the remaining amount of money you owe on the loan, the Housing Division may obtain a deficiency judgment against you (a court ruling that you must pay whatever money is still owed on the loan after the foreclosure sale).

Section 150(b)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, prohibits the deduction of interest on your mortgage by you for federal income tax purposes if there is a continuous period of one year or more in which your home is not the principal residence of at least one of the mortgagors who received the mortgage financed with the Division's assistance. In that event, no deduction will be allowed for interest on your mortgage which accrues on or after the date such period began.
